Subject: Re: Public Sector superannuation

Tom,

Whether there is an election or not, we should not play with peoples retirement, my party would not consider any such move as advocated by Greg Hall MLC.

The RBF State Superannuation scheme was changed in 1999 and with no new starters in the Defined Benefits scheme, we would not change our public servants plans for their retirement.

Our commitment to retirees is one where we will not affect those in the existing Defined Benefits scheme now closed.

We are investigating the proposed Labor and Liberal plan for Superannuation and believe we will not go down the same privatisation path.

That is not a commitment but an undertaking to thoroughly understand before acting in any way.

Selling State assets and that includes Super is not our way.

We are not about creating uncertainty, we are about building a strong future for jobs, jobs and more jobs and we will be working with you to help achieve that.

The current duopoly are so focussed on an ever shrinking economy that they have stopped the growth needed to create a new economy.

Creating uncertainty in the public service is one area we will change, contracts lead to job insecurity as you would be well aware, public servants need to know they have a secure future and should not be worrying about their contract or their financial security in employment or retirement.

The future of Tasmania lies in the hands of its people and on March 15 a vote for Palmer United will be a vote for Tasmania's future in private investment and jobs growth.

Growing the economy is our plan and our vision for Tasmania, your members can be part of this vision also.

Please feel free to give me a call.

Regards
